LATE ENTRANTS CRITICISE SMITH

Jennings and Pollock say that he had nothing to do with Rise in Price of Cotton.

Orangeburg, June 18.—Citizens of Orangeburg were less patient today with the United States senatorial candidates than were those of Calhoun county.

Thomas M. Raysor, who presided in the absence of County Chairman Adam H. Moss, pleaded for a respectful hearing of all candidates, and the Rev. J. L. McLees, Presbyterian minister, prayed that there might be "harmony and peace." However, the post entrants, Messrs Jennings and Pollock, at the very outset of their speeches characterized as absurd the claim of E. D. Smith that he had something to do with raising the price of cotton. In the audience there were probably as many as 1,200 voters, most of them cotton planters, and this denouncing of Senator Smith's efforts for cotton legislation aroused them. In consequence there was much heckling, and at times the speakers had to wait for the laughter and sarcasm hurled from the audience to subside to make themselves heard. "Personally, I have nothing against Mr. Smith," thundered Mr. Jennings. "No, you just want his job. That's all," came back a voice from the crowd.

While Mr. Pollock was speaking, he called the attention of the voters to the fact that Senator Smith had added 50 pounds in weight within the last five years. In which time he has received about $37,000 salary. "Pretty costly meat isn't it! When you get a hog fat, kill him and salt him down, and don't carry him through to another season." The joke "got over" in good fashion, but some was caused it to rebound by retorting, "Yes, but it will cost more than that to put 50 pounds on your carcass."

Give and Take.

Thus the jabs and jolts were handed back and forth, with the chairman occasionally rapping for order. The governor was the last speaker. He was greeted with applause, but before this had subsided, the Smith boom was again at its good crest. The governor's opening remark was: "I heard before I got here this morning that I was to be howled down. Go ahead. I have no objection to your showing that you're not gentlemen. I expect to be a gentleman myself."

Chairman Raysor then interposed, but before the speaking was well under way, the threatened rain set in, and the crowd had to adjourn to the courthouse. Here again the speaker had some difficulty "in getting set," but when once in the proper groove his followers "whooped him up" spontaneously as he denounced the newspapers, bankers, corporations and Republicans and vigorously defended his pardon record, saying he was proud of the fact that he had extended mercy last night in Columbia to one Calhoun convict. "I'm not done yet either," he said. "You like it if you are my friends. If you don't like it you can't help yourself."

New primary regulations were again held up to the voters as a scheme to take the vote from the poor man. "But mark my words. When the election day comes, I'll have my share. Those votes that an effort is being made to keep out will be put in, and will be counted, too."

Smith Claims Some Credit.

Senator Smith's speech was largely a duplication of yesterday's at St. Matthews. He dismissed the charges that he had nothing to do with the price of cotton as "most amusing." He did not claim all the credit, but was proud of the fact that he had the reputation of being a man with one idea, and that was "cotton." Senator Smith put things in a whirl by illustrating the bettered condition of the farmers by the joke of the negro joint-purchasers of the milk cow, one getting the feeding-half and the other the milking-half and the feeding-half owner suggesting that the cow be turned around.

"If the bills I have introduced have had nothing to do with raising the price of cotton, thank God I was there working with heart and soul while it was being done. But isn't it passing strange that the jump in price should be so sudden, and too it should be at the very time some of my efforts were being crowned with a measure of success? Strange, isn't it? What a remarkable coincidence! They tell you that the law of supply and demand has brought all this about. Why we are not only getting $50 more a bale, but we are raising on the average 3,000,000 bales of cotton each year."

Senator Smith again read his parallel column of prices paid for cotton during the two last decades, and the number of bales grown. By this he demonstrated that the price averaged but 81-4 cents from 1894 to 1904, while from 1904 until 1914 the planters have received an average price of 121-2 cents. South Carolina raises on an average of 1,000,000, and this according to Senator Smith's figures, would mean that this advance has brought $200,000,000 to the farmers of this state since the junior senator became active in the interest of the cotton grower.

That campaign exhibit which is creating much interest is the block of standardized bleached and unbleached samples, which by a provision of one of the Smith bills will be placed on all the cotton platforms in the South. This arrangement will enable the producer to compare his own staple with the government's standardized tested samples, and determine the quality of cotton he is throwing on the market. This is being handed out among the farmers from the platform as the party passes from county to county, as "documentary evidence."

Old Soldiers Meeting at Pickens Court House.

Pursuant to a call of B. C. Johnson, the old soldiers met in the Supervisor's office at the court house on June 3d, and held a very enthusiastic meeting in regard to pensioning all the old Confederate soldiers.

On motion, W. B. Allgood was called to the chair and Laban Mauldin requested to act as secretary.

B. C. Johnson offered the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

Pickens Court House, S. C.,
June 3d, 1914.

"We, the old Confederate soldiers of Pickens county, S. C., in mass meeting assembled, do hereby bind ourselves to stand by the following resolutions, to-wit:

"Resolved 1st. That we hereby pledge ourselves to vote only for men for the office of governor, lieutenant governor, senator and legislators, as do favor a pension for all bona-fide Confederate soldiers and their widows as other Southern states are doing.

2d. That we claim that the troops furnished by South Carolina were second to none, and that their losses were more, considering the number in ranks than any other state. Their bravery was never excelled by any army of the world, and that they sustained the honor of the state to the last, and on their return home they found ashes and destruction.—Jemoralization on every side. Yet they went to work and after fifty years of labor to rebuild, we now have one of the richest states of the south.

3d. That according to nature, we cannot live but a few more years, and that if our state does not show her appreciation for our services soon, that she will not have the chance to do so, for it will only be a few more years until we all will have answered the last call.

4th. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to every camp in the state for their consideration and that every newspaper in the state is requested to publish same."

These resolutions were spoken to by B. C. Johnson, S. T. Pryor, Matthew Hendricks and others, and in the discussions the following facts were brought out in regard to what other states are doing for their old soldiers:

Florida pays each old soldier $12.00; Texas $100.00; Kentucky $120.00; Tennessee $210.00; Louisiana $100.00; Missouri $210.00. Virginia appropriates to all of her old soldiers annually $500,000; North Carolina $500,000; Georgia $1,180,000; Alabama $1,000,000; South Carolina $250,000. These figures speak for themselves and therefore need no comment from us.
